

An ACCOUNT of
The Taking by Storm
 THE Famous Fort Kennoque:
 BY THE
Duke of Wirtemberg:

AND OF
 The Forcing the French-Lines by the Elector of Bavaria.

THE Publick hath already had an Account of the Duke of Wirtemberg's Arrival before Kenoque, and Beating the French out of a Post where he designed to have raised his Batteries, &c. I shall only Acquaint you, That on the Nineteenth Instant, We Attacked, and made ourselves Masters of the Out-Works; as also of the Sluce of Boefingen, (which Commands the Water) with little Resistance: After which we began to work on our Batteries; which we finished on the 20th. in the Evening, and planted Twenty-Four Cannons, and some Mortars thereon; from which we began to play upon the Fort, on the 21st. when Two Battallions of Swissers endeavoured to drive our Troops from some of their posts; but were repulsed with Loss. That Day the Duke of Wirtemberg got all thing ready, for a General Storm: And the Supplement to the Rotterdam Gazett, of the 23d. Instant, arrived Yesterday, gives this following Account, by way of Postscript.

Just now the States have Received an Express, with an Account, That the Duke of Wirtemberg had taken Kenoque, with Sword in Hand: And, that during the Action, which was very warm, the Elector of Bavaria had forced the French Lines: The particular of which great Action, are impatiently expected.
